

28095 to 28116—Continued.28110. LAVATERA ASSURGENTIFLORA Kellogg.

"This deciduous shrub, from the island of Anacapa off the coast of Santa Barbara, and now, to some extent, cultivated, is one of rare beauty and grace. As an ornamental shrub, or tree, for it attains to the height of 15 feet, it will be highly esteemed when more generally known. The flowers are purple, about two and a half inches broad, and in this climate continue long in bloom." (Kellogg, in Proceedings California Academy, vol. 1, p. 14. 1854.)

28111 and 28112. MAYTENUS BOARIA Molina.

28111. "Weeping Maiten. Has a red bark and one seed in a pod; the seeds contain a quantity of oil."

28112. "Maiten derecho. Leaves and branches grow straight upright. Has white bark and two seeds in each pod, the seeds contain a quantity of oil."

See No. 26187 for previous introduction.

28113. NOTHOFAGUS sp.

From dry central Chile.

28114. PISUM ARVENSE L.

Pea.

"Stringless peas, whose extra-large, sweet, thick pods are comestible like green beans."

28115. RICINUS COMMUNIS L.

Castor-oil bean.

"Wild castor beans from the dry hills of Coquimbo."

28116. VILLARESIA MUCRONATA Ruiz. & Pav.

Nearly all of the publications on Chilean botany that include this species give Citrus chilensis Molina, 1782, as a synonym. If this citation is correct the specific name chilensis is earlier than mucronata, but with the material at present available it is impossible to establish their identity.

"Gillipatagua."
